Most of Victims Army Recruits Preparing for Training at Ft. Benning

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP) — A Richardo Herera, 23, an American Airlines airliner crashed in the foothills of the rugged Arkansas Mountains in southern Oklahoma Friday night, killing 28 of its 98 passengers, most of them Army recruits preparing for advanced basic training.

Pvt. Joseph Deeny, 20, Lindenwood, N.J., said he "had to crawl to get away from the flames — they were licking at my legs."

A couple of my friends were near me, and they were hurt in a bad way," Deeny said. He had been sleeping in the rear of the plane and was thrown out when it slammed into the sandstone and granite slopes.

Died Later
The death toll included one person who survived the crash but died later in an Ardmore hospital. The official death count was

U.S. Reacquires More Bombs for Viet Nam

By BOB HORTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has bought back or otherwise reacquired 18,000 bombs from allies so far this year for use in Southeast Asia, it was learned today.

A Defense Department spokesman said the bombs, originally described as bomb inventories now near minimum levels.

A source acknowledged that the Air Force is having problems with its bomb supplies although he insisted that no air operations over Viet Nam have been canceled for lack of bombs.

Fox Cities — Cloudy with occasional rain this afternoon, tonight and Sunday. Little change in temperature. Low tonight, near 45 degrees. High Sunday, near 55 degrees.

Air ordnance inventories must not be allowed to decrease further, it was said.

Some of the 18,000 bombs, the spokesman said, were merely reclaimed under existing aid agreements. Others were bought back "for no more than we sold them."

Future Recreation Preserve

State Conservationists Eye Langlade Stretch of Wolf

MADISON — A 34-mile stretch of the turbulent and beautiful Wolf River in Langlade County is emerging as the major current objective of the Wisconsin Conservation Commission in the development of public recreational preserves for the use of future generations.

Enthusiastic reaction of two members of the commission who recently toured the district and inspected the Wolf River shorelands and near-by tributary streams indicates that there will be an early push for purchase of the strategic frontage, or a proposal for a land exchange with the two industrial forest corporations which now hold most of the property.

Charles F. Smith of Wausau and D. K. Tyler, Phillips, of the commission land committee recently nominated the river stretch as deserving of highest priority in the commission's land acquisition program.

They were joined by Charles Lloyd of the state fisheries division who said "this may be our last opportunity. We would be negligent if we failed to act."

Undeveloped Country

The stretch of stream eagerly discussed by the official courses from Pearson in northern Langlade County through relatively undeveloped country to the Menominee County line. The stretch includes 13 major rapids. Acquisition plans would also include frontage on numerous and productive trout tributaries and spring holes, for the protection of the main stream. Altogether, it is estimated that the project would include a cost of at least $1 million for land purchases without taking into account possible developments and improvements.

Officials note that one of the advantages of prompt action would be heading off private real estate and similar developments at some points along the river that would involve heavy cost increases if the acquisition proposal is long delayed.

Already there are some signs of potential "Coney Island" developments at some access points used by fishermen and canoeists. Lloyd said.

Act Now

"We will allow the river to be ruined if we don't act now," he urged.

Several commissioners noted that public discussions of the state's interest in a Wolf River recreational tract have commonly assumed that the logical acquisition would be on the Wolf in Menominee County. All proposals for state acquisition of lands from Menominee Enterprises, Inc., have faltered, however, points used by fishermen and canoeists. Lloyd said.

Now the commission officials indicate their belief that the Langlade section of the river may be more desirable from a public use standpoint.

Desirable Segment

Smith said he has been surprised to learn that the 440-foot fall in the river in the Langlade County stretch is more rapid than it is in the Indian district southward through which it passes.

Jack Schumacher of Shawano agreed that the Langlade County river segment is "equally or more desirable" than the river in the Menominee County area.

Smith noted also that there is "no other major waterway with so much wild land adjoining it."

Preliminary department studies indicate that private development in the area has affected only about five per cent of the entire tract.

Questioning on NE School Site To be Resumed

Real Estate Agents From Green Bay to Face Discovery Quiz

Outagamie County will resume discovery proceedings Monday in the controversy over the selection of a northeast Green Bay site for the proposed northeastern branch of the University of Wisconsin.

The county had questioned state officials earlier this month at Madison regarding the site selection.

Outagamie County contends that the criteria established for selection of a campus site were not followed by the state statutory Site Selection Committee.

County Corporation Counsel A. W. Ponath will question Len Seidl, a Green Bay real estate agent, at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the jury room of Brown County Circuit Court Branch 2. Leo Bordealeau, another Green Bay real estate broker, will be questioned at 3 p.m.

Ponath is being assisted by Stewart Honeck, a former state attorney general.

Ponath will question John B. Torinus, chairman of the Fox Cities Education Committee, at 9 a.m. Tuesday in the Outagamie County Circuit Court room at the courthouse here.

At 10 a.m., Ponath will question George C. Greenwood, Kaukauna, who was chairman of the Kaukauna Chamber of Commerce Site Committee.

Gordon A. Bubolz, chairman of the Outagamie County Bar Association who provided the county with legal advice prior to the discovery proceedings, will be questioned at 11 a.m.

Principals and guidance counselors attending the meeting were told the program has been assigned pilot status by the State Department of Public Instruction and funds will be available under the Vocational Act of 1963. One-half of the program's total cost may be paid by these funds.

Permission was received from the State Department of Public Instruction late this week to use a portion of the federal Elementary and Secondary Education Act funds for this vocational training program.

The per-pupil, per-year cost still hinges on the number of students who will be enrolled. If 240 students enrolled, it is anticipated that 4 teachers, one coordinator, one counselor and one secretary would be needed. If a portion of Title I funds are used and capital outlay is distributed over a five-year period, the yearly per-pupil cost would be $81.

Some school officials at the meeting were amazed at this low per pupil cost.

(The average number of students in state high schools attend five or six classes a day. The average cost to educate a high school student in 1964-65 was $543. Students participating in the vocational training program here will spend two class periods a day at the school for the estimated $81 per-year figure. This compares to the same amount of time, if spent in the regular high school, which would cost approximately $197.

Area Schools

School and industrial officials from Chilton, Stockbridge, Hilbert, Reedsville, Wrightstown, Denmark, Valders and Brillion have indicated an interest in the program which will offer courses in foundry operation, mechanics, auto and truck body work, metal fabrication and possibly printing.

Donations of money, equipment and supplies have been promised from Ford Motor, General Motors, Ford Tractor, International Harvester, Brillion Iron Works, Rent-A-Truck, Modern Business Machines Inc. and Ariens Co. if this new venture is assured of becoming operational.

Additional donations are anticipated from other suppliers who have indicated an interest in being a part of the state's first vocational training school for high school students.

Several high schools have definitely committed themselves to the program and others are awaiting final board of education approval now that cost figures have been compiled.

Chances are slim that the Fox Valley Regional Planning Commission can obtain funds from the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) for a feasibility study for a regional refuse disposal system.

Richard Eldredge, consultant from the department's Chicago regional office of solid waste, told the commission's refuse disposal committee Friday that HEW funds are available only for studies which would involve new and improved refuse disposal methods. He said the methods would have to be new on a national scale, not just locally.

Eldredge told the committee "the picture is not entirely dark if you can come up with innovations."

Survey Municipalities

The commission has been conducting a survey among municipalities in the Fox Valley to find out what methods of refuse disposal and collection they use and what problems they anticipate in the near future. Several municipalities have indicated they will face disposal problems in the near future.

Eldredge said there are federal 701 funds available for feasibility studies for regional systems, but none from the HEW office of solid waste except for new and improved systems.

Hew also said the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development has funds available for new and improved systems.

Commissioned Officer

After graduation from the University of Illinois Medical School, Dr. Kagen interned at Cook County Hospital, Chicago. He also served two years in the service, and was a commissioned officer on active duty in the Reserve Corps of the U.S. Public Health Service.

In addition to Democratic party politics, Dr. Kagen also has been active in community, county and regional civic projects and holds membership in many organizations.

Among his professional affiliations are membership in the Outagamie County and Wisconsin Medical societies, American Medical Association, Wisconsin Dermatology Society, Chicago Dermatology Society, American Academy of Dermatology and the International Congress of Dermatology.

Wife in Politics

Mrs. Kagen, the former Virginia Ann Johnson, studied at Lawrence University, and is a graduate of St. Luke School of Nursing, Chicago. She has been a Democratic precinct committeewoman and was in Washington with a delegation of Wisconsin Democrats this week.

Dr. Kagen is the first resident of the 8th District to throw his hat in the ring for the congressional nomination. "In this endeavor, I will need the help of all my friends," Dr. Kagen said. They reside at 505 E. Grant St.

Sewage, Water Among Problems; Delay Decision on Joining Fox Or Wolf River Planning Groups

CHILTON — A total of 10 members in New Holstein, Chilton, Hilbert and Sherwood. After some discussion, supervisors decided to postpone any further action until the June session when representatives from the Wolf River Basin Regional Planning Commission and the Fox Valley Regional Planning Commission have agreed to talk to the board regarding the possibility of Calumet County's joining one of these planning groups.

TAP had previously discussed with the board the many grants and loans available to Calumet County municipalities if it undertakes a comprehensive plan.

Cooperative Incinerators

Meyer said, the 10 areas are pollution and sewage, water supply, zoning and land use, parks and recreation, transportation and highways, cooperative incinerators, agricultural problems, the preservation of our heritage through museums, and industrial development and manpower.

Meyer said area representatives expressed the need for soil surveys to show the capability of the soil for handling waste water and sewage in areas about to undergo residential development. Calumet County's soil survey is only about half completed.

Representatives from Kiel and New Holstein felt that transcript of all meetings and cooperative incinerators might also inform all town board members when a zoning committee meeting was being held.

In addition to this committee was instructed to start work on the development of a zoning ordinance for the township.

The ordinance will be developed from the present zoning resolution on it and appropriate effect since 1960 and one that has been proposed by the Green County zoning administrator and Engineering firm. The firm has recently completed work on a comprehensive master plan for the towns of Farmington, Dayton and Waupaca.

Members of the zoning committee are Gyldevand, chairman Charles Booth, G. Lloyd Jorgensen, and Raymond Moe.

Appointed to Zoning Group

Richard Penn to Replace Cripe on Town Committee

WAUPACA — Richard Penn has been appointed to the Town of Farmington zoning committee to replace Harold Cripe who recently resigned.

The appointment was made by the town board at a reorganizational meeting held this week. In addition to naming Penn, Lualyn Gyldevand was selected as chairman of the zoning group.

The committee was instructed by the town board to keep a transcript of all meetings and also inform all town board members when a zoning committee meeting was being held.

In addition to this committee was instructed to start work on the development of a zoning ordinance for the township.

The ordinance will be developed from the present zoning resolution on it and appropriate effect since 1960 and one that has been proposed by the Green County zoning administrator and Engineering firm. The firm has recently completed work on a comprehensive master plan for the towns of Farmington, Dayton and Waupaca.

Members of the zoning committee are Gyldevand, chairman Charles Booth, G. Lloyd Jorgensen, and Raymond Moe.

Chances are slim that the Fox Valley Regional Planning Commission can obtain funds from the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) for a feasibility study for a regional refuse disposal system.

Richard Eldredge, consultant from the department's Chicago regional office of solid waste, told the commission's refuse disposal committee Friday that HEW funds are available only for studies which would involve new and improved refuse disposal methods. He said the methods would have to be new on a national scale, not just locally.

Eldredge told the committee "the picture is not entirely dark if you can come up with innovations."

Survey Municipalities

The commission has been conducting a survey among municipalities in the Fox Valley to find out what methods of refuse disposal and collection they use and what problems they anticipate in the near future. Several municipalities have indicated they will face disposal problems in the near future.

Eldredge said there are federal 701 funds available for feasibility studies for regional systems, but none from the HEW office of solid waste except for new and improved systems.

Hew also said the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development has funds available for new and improved systems.

Commissioned Officer

After graduation from the University of Illinois Medical School, Dr. Kagen interned at Cook County Hospital, Chicago. He also served two years in the service, and was a commissioned officer on active duty in the Reserve Corps of the U.S. Public Health Service.

In addition to Democratic party politics, Dr. Kagen also has been active in community, county and regional civic projects and holds membership in many organizations.

Among his professional affiliations are membership in the Outagamie County and Wisconsin Medical societies, American Medical Association, Wisconsin Dermatology Society, Chicago Dermatology Society, American Academy of Dermatology and the International Congress of Dermatology.

Wife in Politics

Mrs. Kagen, the former Virginia Ann Johnson, studied at Lawrence University, and is a graduate of St. Luke School of Nursing, Chicago. She has been a Democratic precinct committeewoman and was in Washington with a delegation of Wisconsin Democrats this week.

Dr. Kagen is the first resident of the 8th District to throw his hat in the ring for the congressional nomination. "In this endeavor, I will need the help of all my friends," Dr. Kagen said. They reside at 505 E. Grant St.

Calumet To Collect Legal Fees

County Has Ten Years to Try for Fees of Indigents

CHILTON — County supervisors approved a resolution Friday to permit county action within a 10-year period for collecting legal fees paid by the county for indigent defendants.

From now on the Clerk of Court will keep records, which will be on file with the Register of Deeds, of the name, address and amount paid for each indigent defendant.

The county may try to collect this amount any time within the 10-year period when it seems apparent that the defendant or his estate is able to make payment.

Also approved was a resolution allocating the estimated state trunk highway allotment of $56,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1967, for the improvement of State 114 for a 2.78 mile stretch between Appleton and Sherwood.

Request Rezoning

A request from the Town of Rantoul to rezone a 20-acre plot from agricultural to light industrial was referred to the Park Commission, which also handles zoning changes. It is hoped to have homes and an electrical shop built in this area.

A letter from the State Highway Department informed the board that prepayment of county trunk highway supplemental aid for 1966 will be $42,426. This was based on 50 per cent of the balance paid in July of 1965 which was $84,852. When the full amount due the county for 1966 is known at the end of the fiscal year June 30, 1966, the prepayment will be subtracted and the balance paid in July.

Board members approved the per diem increase from $8 to $12 effective May 1 for all members of the Park Commission, jury commissioners, veteran's service commissioners, members of the county board of canvassers, members of the zoning board of adjustments, jurors and the Homestead board of trustees.

Effective May 1

Supervisors now receive $12 per committee meeting and it has been customary to pay all board members a like amount.

The committee for protection of persons and property was authorized to negotiate with county municipalities for an increase in the monthly rental charge for the police radio service. At present many municipalities pay $22.50 a month which is not felt to be enough to handle cost of operations.

A discussion concerning the possible supplementing of the county judge's salary resulted in the matter being turned over to the salary and personnel committee which will make recommendation to the board in June.

Salary Raise

At the March session representatives from the county bar association asked consideration of a $4,000 county supplement which would raise the judge's salary from $13,500, the state minimum salary, a year to $17,500. Any supplement made by the county would run from the time designated by the board until expiration of the present term in January 1968. A new state minimum of $17,500 will automatically become effective at the start of the next term.

A request from the New Hope day care service board that a member from the county board be appointed to the service board was referred to the Handicapped Children's Board for their recommendation.

The New Hope day care center services those mentally handicapped children in the county either too young or too old to be helped by the county sponsored program of special classes.

Appleton Firm Enters School Design Project

Seek Renovation Rather Than New Construction

An Appleton architectural firm is one of several participating in a nationwide program to put new life into old school buildings.

The Research Council of the Great Cities Program for School Improvement has announced that Raymond N. LeVee and Associates, Inc., was invited, and accepted the invitation to participate in the architectural competition.

Because of the high cost of constructing new school buildings, a continuing study is underway in 15 member cities over the next four years to remodel outmoded school plants.

Chicago School

The Appleton firm is entering its proposal for remodeling the 55-year-old Hyde Park High School in Chicago, originally designed in 1911 to accommodate 5,000 students.

Hyde Park high is to be remodeled for 2,500 students at a cost not to exceed $2 million, not including equipment for science laboratories. Cash awards will be distributed to the best plans submitted.

With the $5,000 first place award will go the contract from the City of Chicago to prepare plans and specifications and supervise construction of the school.

Such a competition for future Appleton public school construction has been periodically discussed during the past year by members of the city council.

The non-profit research council receives the money for conducting the design competition over the next four years from Educational Facilities Laboratory in Washington.

"The problem of renovating outmoded school plants is by no means confined to one school in one city," LeVee explained. He said information supplied by the research council disclosed that in the 15-member cities there are approximately 600 public school buildings still in use which were constructed prior to 1900; almost 900 built during the period 1901-1920, or more than 1,500 schools still in use, which were built prior to 1920.

1965 Statistics Show Sections College Enrollment Below Norm

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Newly published statistics of the Coordinating Committee for Higher Education (CCHHE) on the enrollment of high school graduates in collegiate institutions tend to support the belief of state officials that additional higher education opportunity is needed in the northeastern Wisconsin region.

The study of 1965 high school graduates and their enrollment in colleges disclosed that the ratio of such enrollments from the high school classes in the northeastern section is substantially below that for the state as a whole.

It is also shown that while the ratio of enrollment in college for the state rose in 1965 over the previous year, there was a slight decline in the ratio for the northeastern Wisconsin counties.

1965 Ratio

The 1965 ratio of high school graduates entering college, public and private, for 9 Fox Valley counties and Door County was put at 35.1 per cent. It was 35.5 per cent in 1964.

For the state last year the ratio was 38.3 per cent, against 37.5 per cent in 1964.

The Valley region for purposes of the CCHHE survey was defined to include Brown, Outagamie, Calumet, Door, Fond du Lac, Kewaunee, Manitowoc, Sheboygan and Winnebago counties.

They produced 11,979 high school graduates, and 4,210 of them enrolled in collegiate studies.

Peace Feelers or Political Maneuvers?

The latest American effort to send out peace feelers to find an honorable way of ending the war in Viet Nam was offered by Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield. But it did not need United Nations Ambassador Arthur Goldberg's assurance that it would be considered by the White House to make it official. Senator Mansfield proposed the plan just after a visit with President Johnson in Texas.

The proposal is that the United States meet with representatives from "Hanoi, Peking and such elements in South Viet Nam as may be essential to the making and keeping of a peaceful settlement in that region." Burma and Japan were suggested as possible meeting places and the State Department concurred that any overtures from those countries, or other appropriate Asian nations, would be welcomed by the United States.

Although charges have been made, most recently by New York Times columnist Arthur Krock, that every conciliatory statement by the United States seemed to be accompanied by an extension of bombing raids and thus do not appear to be sincere, the latest effort opens a door if ever so slightly that had been closed before. Although President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk have several times said that the United States will talk with "anyone" and even including the national liberation front in Viet Nam, there has never been any serious attempt to contact Viet Cong leaders as far as can be determined. Premier Ky, who no longer seems to have the full backing of the American government accorded him at the Philippine conference, firmly opposed any such negotiation. And at the other end of the spectrum is Ho Chi Minh's insistence that the only group eligible to speak for South Viet Nam is the Front.

Presumably Senator, Mansfield's description of the "elements in South Viet Nam . . . essential to the making and keeping of a peaceful settlement" could be interpreted as including the Viet Cong. But it should be noted that the American position remains that the Viet Cong are only puppets of Hanoi. Ambassador Goldberg in a television interview insisted that the disruptive elements in Viet Nam in the last few weeks agree they want no business with the Communists. The Buddhist leader Tri Quang also avers no interest in dealing with Communists in either North or South Viet Nam and that if there are non-Communists in the Viet Cong "they are completely exploited and led by the Communists, so we can have no hope for them . . . being led or directed by Communists is the same as being a Communist." But the Buddhist leader has sometimes changed the tone of his remarks to fit the immediate need. It is also possible that the Mansfield proposal and the hint of Viet Cong participation is really aimed at scaring the dissident elements in South Viet Nam into a little more backing for the government of Premier Ky until the August elections are held. This may be especially true in the province of Da Nang where it took the threat of military action by United States Marines to prevent the outbreak of civil war.

Viet Cong activity has decreased in recent weeks. Military leaders feel that it has been caused by the American triumphs in the war. The political crisis of the last few weeks has also been suggested as a hopeful sign that the Buddhist leaders, seeking power, dared to act because of a lessened threat from Communists. But it has still not been adequately established that the Viet Cong are controlled from Hanoi. If the United States is willing to discuss the possibilities of peace with delegates from North Viet Nam and Red China, it would seem reasonable to include delegates from the National Liberation Front. And if the war is going as badly for the Viet Cong as appears likely, the time might indeed be ripe especially if the Viet Cong have some amount of autonomy.

By implication Ambassador Goldberg's proposal that the United Nations, instead of the United States, take up the job of policing a settlement in Viet Nam is an admission that we should have done that in the first place. But it is somewhat difficult to know exactly how the U.N. already plagued with deficits from its other peace-keeping operations, is going to be able to function effectively in Viet Nam.

However serious have been United States mistakes in Viet Nam—and they have been monumental in our opinion—our government is doing the American people a deep injustice if the peace feelers are merely window dressing. The less than complete statements of policy by administration spokesmen in the past do not encourage us.

How to Get a Baseball Team

A better idea of how far Atlanta was willing to go to woo the Braves away from Milwaukee came to light this week when it was revealed that the Atlanta Stadium Authority is paying the costs of both the Braves and the entire National League in their defense of Wisconsin's anti-trust suit. And given the prospect that Judge Roller's decision will undoubtedly be appealed to the Wisconsin and United States Supreme Courts, this open-ended commitment could cost Atlanta hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The chairman of the Stadium Authority, Arthur Montgomery, said a supplementary agreement signed when the Braves agreed to move to Atlanta "provided that we pay the litigation costs of the National League. There was no other way we could get the Braves, so we agreed to it. The National League wouldn't sanction the move unless we did." Montgomery also revealed that Atlanta paid the moving costs of the Braves.

There have been stories out of Atlanta that the real reason the southern city was so anxious to land a major league baseball team was to justify the building of a 50,000-seat stadium which they really wanted most to be able to attract a team in the National Football League. Many sports-writers who attended the opening baseball game in Atlanta wrote that the city seems to be much more excited about the new Atlanta Falcons in the N.F.L. than they are about the Braves.

But it begins to appear that Atlanta will need most of the 25 years of rent the Braves contract provides to pay the cost of landing the team. And then the Braves could always decide to move elsewhere in a few years.

Loyalty Oaths Again

The decision of the United States Supreme Court in holding that an Arizona statute requiring a loyalty oath of public employees was unconstitutional did not specifically state that all such oaths cannot be upheld. Rather it was the "vague" wording of the Arizona oath to which the court objected. This was also a major objection of the plaintiffs.

According to the Arizona law, anyone who signed the oath could be convicted if he "knowingly or willfully" joined any group having as one of its purposes the overthrow of the government of Arizona. This would appear to come under earlier court decisions that loyalty oaths could be required by states of various public employees.

But the plaintiffs argued that a person could be convicted of perjury even if he did not know that some organization to which he belonged was subversive. This might include international organizations of scientists or artists. The majority opinion, written by Justice Douglas, went somewhat further. "Those who join an organization do not share its unlawful purposes and who do not participate in its unlawful activities surely pose no threat, either as citizens or as public employees." Presumably this would include even those who join the Communist Party if they seek to change its aims of overthrowing democratic governments.

The court has upheld the right of states to require such oaths of public employees but it has ruled as unconstitutional several for their confusing and vague definitions. A law in Oklahoma was ruled out because it could charge with falsely signing an oath those who did not know the purposes of organizations they joined. Similar invalidations were made of oaths in Arkansas, Florida and Washington. But it should also be noted that these were split decisions and the most recent one was by the narrow 5-4 majority.

Entirely aside from the constitutional question, loyalty oaths are certainly ineffective. It is unlikely that they smoke out any known subversives or prevent any large amounts of public monies being paid to them. Among some public employees, most notably teachers, the requirements have come to be regarded as an indication of unwarranted suspicion of a particular group. They often point out that even the President of the United States does not have to deny intentions to overthrow the government or to belong to subversive organizations. If loyalty oaths are to be reasonable at all, they must be positive in nature.

Church Revival in Greenville

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for April 14, 1866.

GREENVILLE — A revival of much power has been progressing for some weeks past. Ministers of different denominations have joined together, put their shoulders to the wheel, with the determination that some good shall be accomplished.

Those who claim conversions are mostly young people from 13 to 24 years of age—fresh, vigorous, beginning their day's work for eternity in the beginning springtime of their lives. May they accomplish much good if they can, if they hold out faithful until they enter their rest above.

But with this revival, as with all others, few if any will be found to remain faithful a great while, when the excitement is done away. All which have witnessed the result of these excitements of religion know it to be a fact.

Just so, also, with Singing Schools; they sing tolerably well after being drilled awhile, but when the teacher leaves he

Key Bases On Island Of Luzon

BY PETER O'LOUGHLIN

Associated Press Writer
MANILA (AP) — A powerful and little-publicized complex of American bases 800 miles across the China Sea from Saigon is playing a vital part in the Viet Nam war.

They are the bases on the Philippine island of Luzon, manned by 100,000 Americans and Filipinos.

Between them, they keep the Seventh Fleet at sea, provide an essential communications link with Viet Nam, supply staging points for massive air lifts of men and materiel and offer an evacuation hospital and rest camp for wounded and war weary servicemen.

They offer one thing that is missing in Viet Nam—a secure rear area. At the same time they provide air and sea defense for the Philippine Islands.

KEY ELEMENTS

Subic Bay Naval Base, a former Spanish stronghold close to the entrance to Manila Bay, and Clark Air Force Base in the central Luzon plains, are the key elements.

Clark is a sprawling 157,000-acre fortress, headquarters of the 13th Air Force. It is home base to the 405th Fighter Wing and the 6200th Materiel Wing. The 405th's supersonic F-100s, F-102s, F-4Cs and B-57 bombers can be scrambled in five minutes.

Clark is Southeast Asia's major Air Force supply base, and proudly describes itself as "the air logistics hub of Southeast Asia." Hardly a transport aircraft flying to Viet Nam from the U.S. does not pass through Clark.

Last year the weight of munitions and supplies moved through the base quadrupled to 150 million pounds.

The most personal contact Clark has with the shooting war comes at its six-story, multi-million dollar evacuation hospital. Nearly all serious American casualties from Viet Nam pass through the 260 bed hospital, claimed to be one of the most modern in the world.

A soldier shot in Viet Nam can be at Clark in six hours. This is one of the reasons why the death rate of wounded—1.3 per cent—is the lowest of any war the U.S. has ever fought.

The load at Clark has been so heavy that the Air Force is spending $2 million developing another base at Mactan, an island off Cebu, where Ferdinand Magellan met his death.

Mactan operates two C-130 squadrons and is a refueling and pit stop for military transport aircraft flying to and from Viet Nam.

GROWTH IS RAPID

The Air Force establishment in the Philippines is growing at a rapid pace. Last year the appropriation was $24 million. The amount has already been spent in the first six months of the current financial year.

The U.S. Navy build-up is keeping pace with that of the Air Force.

Subic Bay, a $271 million installation with an 8,500 foot runway, is as important to the Seventh Fleet as oil and ammunition. The Navy gets both these items at Subic, along with everything else from torpedoes to toilet paper.

More than 250,000 tons of cargo, 10 million gallons of oil and 48,000 tons of ammunition find their way to Subic every three months. The nearest port with equivalent docking, harbor, repair, supply and ammunition facilities is in Japan, 2,000 miles away.

If the 175 ships, 700 aircraft and 75,000 men of the Seventh Fleet had to rely on Japan for replenishment, the armada would need four times as many ships, according to Rear Adm. Donald G. Baer, the fiery, ginger-haired commanding officer at Subic.

"We are vital to the Viet Nam war," he says.

Because of its strategic position, its safe, deep harbor, its huge naval magazine and takes all the singing with him. — Greenville Louis.

THE PHILIPPINE BASES-- Vital to Viet Nam War

United States bases in the Philippines keep the 7th Fleet at sea, sustain the Viet Nam airlift and offer hospitals and rest for American fighting men. This "secure rear area," manned by 70,000 Americans and 30,000 Filipinos, is also a boon to the Philippines, whose leaders say "Yankee, Stay Here."

its gunnery and guided missile ranges, Subic is a bustle of activity, handling 172 ships a month. All except fleet oilers and aircraft carriers can be drydocked for repair.

But the Navy is still not satisfied with the facilities. A $52.4 million expansion program is underway, of which $11 million is earmarked for the naval magazine. This will make it one of the biggest arms dumps in Asia. Whether or not it includes nuclear weapons the navy isn't saying.

ATOMIC WEAPONS?

Since the attack carriers of the fleet carry nuclear strike aircraft it would seem a safe bet atomic weapons are stored close by. One of Subic's major advantages is that aircraft carriers can moor alongside the jet airstrip and unload their aircraft onto the runway and thus keep them flying while the ship is undergoing routine maintenance.

Battle repair of Navy aircraft at Subic has jumped 12 times in the last year. The airstrip was hacked out of a mountain by the Seabees in an operation that moved more earth than the building of the Panama Canal.

Subic is the only port in the Philippines which can handle the giant nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise.

Smaller bases in the Philippines also play an important part in the Viet Nam war. Sangley Point, a naval base just across the bay from Manila, is an important anti-submarine warfare center. The airstrip has recently been lengthened to 8,500 feet and new hangars are being built to house aircraft which patrol the China Sea around the clock.

Small bases at San Miguel, near Subic, and Tiarac, near Clark, are among the world's largest communications centers and link Washington with military commanders in Viet Nam and other parts of Asia.

Salmon Industry Is Imperiled

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — A young salmon, tagged in the North Esk River of Scotland in November 1964, has been discovered in the feeding grounds off Greenland. Scotland has feared for some time that salmon migrate from here.

Last year representatives of the Scottish salmon fishing interests expressed great concern at the big increase in the amount of salmon fishing carried out by Eskimos in the far north in recent years.

The fear in Scotland is that if too many salmon are caught in far-off waters an insufficient number will get back to their native rivers to spawn.

Compulsory Checking Of Motor Vehicles Old Legislative Bone

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — One of the most durable of the perennial legislative propositions of modern times in Wisconsin is the idea of compulsory and periodical inspection of motor vehicles for mechanical fitness.

Wyngaard

Again and again during the last quarter of a century or more the plan has been enthusiastically presented to the legislature as a promising method of reducing the number of accidents and deaths on the highways. Often it wins the backing of the timid or the ill-informed who shrink from other proposals for highway safety improvement that would probably be more effective, but are less popular.

Require all of the motor vehicle owners of the state to present their autos at inspection stations once a year, or perhaps more frequently, the argument goes, and it will be disclosed that there are thousands of mechanical deficiencies. Require those defects to be eliminated, it is asserted, and the number of highway accidents will immediately be reduced.

MANY FACTORS

There is illustrated here an illusion about the problem of highway accident loss that has been typified in the political discussions over the years. Everybody has his favorite prescription.

Yet the fact, evidently unacceptable to many legislators as well as constituents of legislators, is that the highway safety problem is so complex and has so many facets that a thorough attack upon it will require legislation in many directions. Mechanical defects contribute to the highway accident record, beyond a doubt. But they are far down on the list of causes, according to the professional statisticians in the field. Far more important are controls on the driver, as shown by the fact that the two causes of accidents which are consistently listed highest are excessive speeds, and drinking while driving.

In Washington today there is a deep congressional involvement in the quality of safety engineering in the auto manufacturing industry. Many congressmen are convinced that if Detroit can be forced into improved designs, the problem of death and injury on the highways will be reduced. These are men of good faith. Obviously the quality of the machine has a relation to the problem of safe driving.

There is a new emphasis upon highway engineering as it relates to highway safety. Just now the State Highway Department, under new financing authorized by the legislature a few months ago, is embarking upon a program of spot improvements in highways at locations shown by the accident records to be dangerously faulty. They will include hills, curves, intersections and other physical problems.

THE DRIVER

Yet the judgment of the average motorist, backed as it is by the record, must conclude that the driver is the most important component of the highway safety program.

As one knowledgeable politician remarked recently during a discussion of automotive mechanics in relation to highway accidents, with the candor permitted by the assurance of privacy, the chief issue is one of the nut at the steering wheel.

The ingredients of a better safety program are known by all who profess an interest in the subject, or those in the legislature and outside it who have listened to the long discussions of the problem over the years. They will include, in the end, more severe driver controls, more deterrent penalties for such obvious offenses as excessive speeding and intoxication, more instruction of beginning drivers, more policing, stricter examinations and re-examinations at intervals, and perhaps others for which the legislature and the public does not now have a stomach.

The search for scapegoats will continue, until the brutal shock of the highway accident cost figures will compel a realistic consensus about a solution.

Meteorite Reported Here Apparently Fell in Lake

Editor, Post-Crescent:

On Monday evening, March 14th, The Post-Crescent carried an article on a "ball of fire, believed to be a meteorite" seen the preceding evening by a number of persons in Outagamie County and points south. As regional director for the American Meteor Society (and also because it ties in with my own research) I made quite an effort to determine the course of this object and, if possible, pick up the pieces. Some of your readers who saw the fireball may be interested in the result.

Since the object was well to the east of Appleton—presumably over Lake Michigan—my first move was to try for reports from Michigan. The editor of the Traverse City Record-Eagle kindly printed my letter of inquiry, and I was rewarded with half a dozen reports from that area. One observer had seen the fireball through a picture window and carefully marked on the window frame the points where the fireball made its entrance and exit. From these he determined the compass bearings and vertical elevations of two points on the trajectory. Combining these with another pair of trajectory points determined by a skilled observer in Appleton, I was able to plot the course of the fireball as northward over the east shore of Lake Michigan with a probable impact point about 15 miles south of Manistiquie. Hoping I was wrong about the watery terminus I addressed a letter to the Pioneer-Tribune in Manistiquie requesting reports from that area. Unfortunately, from two reports that came back, it appears that this fireball—or rather the presumed meteorite that caused it—did land in the lake about as indicated by my initial calculations.

The point of the foregoing is mainly to make it clear that fireball reports are of much more than just passing interest. Scientists all over the world are making a serious effort to recover freshly fallen meteorites (as well as old ones) for the record which they preserve of cosmic radiation in space. For example, specimens of a freshly-fallen meteorite that landed near Bruderheim, Alberta, on March 4, 1960, were distributed to at least 27 scientists at major research centers.

I am grateful for the fact that The Post-Crescent prints accounts of major fireballs it gets wind of. I shall be even more grateful if area people who happen to see these things will get in touch with me directly.

Kimberly Rally Tips Hortonville In Non-Loop Tilt

Papermakers Aided By Breaks in 5-4 Win; Gossens Gets Victory

HORTONVILLE — A walk sacrifice, a single that produced a run on a two-base throwing error and a run-scoring passed ball in the last half of the seventh inning gave the Kimberly Papermakers a 5-4 win over Hortonville in a non-conference game here Friday.

Hortonville took a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning only to have Kimberly tie it in the bottom of the inning. However, the Polar Bears got their two run lead back in the next inning.

The Papermakers got a lone run in the sixth to cut the margin before the game-winning runs in the final frame.

Gary Gossens picked up the win for Kimberly, pitching the final two innings in relief of starter Gary Van Cuyk.

Bruce Kluge absorbed the loss for the Polar Bears.

Joe Dupont led the Kimberly plate attack with 2-for-3 including a double.

Celtics Top Lakers To Lead Playoffs

Boston Can Wrap Up Eighth Straight NBA Title Sunday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I'm hoping that the next game will be my last as a coach. I don't want to finish the season in Los Angeles," said Boston Celtic coach Red Auerbach.

Auerbach, who is retiring after this season, is on the threshold of his eighth consecutive National Basketball Association championship and is eager to win it before home fans in the Boston Garden.

The Celtics beat the Los Angeles Lakers, 122-117, Friday night before 15,251 Laker fans in the Sports Arena to take a 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven series.

Milwaukee Canceled Plans For AFL Tilt

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A Milwaukee realtor says he has canceled plans to promote an American Football League exhibition game at County Stadium because the Green Bay Packers wouldn't cooperate.

Marvin Fishman said Friday that the Packers had denied use of the stadium for the game.

The National Football League team has exclusive professional football rights for stadium use through 1968.

Fishman had hoped to lure the New York Jets and the Miami Dolphins to Milwaukee for a game Aug. 20 or 21. He said the game would have drawn 40,000 fans.

The realtor originally went to the county board with his request for stadium use. The board referred him to the Packers.

Five NL Players Fined $25 for Rule Infraction

CINCINNATI (AP) — Players of five different baseball clubs have been fined $25 each this season for violating the National League's anti-fraternization rule. Warren C. Giles, league president, said Friday.

Giles said the fines have been levied against members of the Atlanta Braves, Cincinnati Reds, New York Mets, Philadelphia Phils and Pittsburgh Pirates. He did not name any of the players.

The National League's fine for fraternization on the playing field was raised from $10 to $25 this year.

Baltimore Offers Fans Opportunity To Coach Bullets

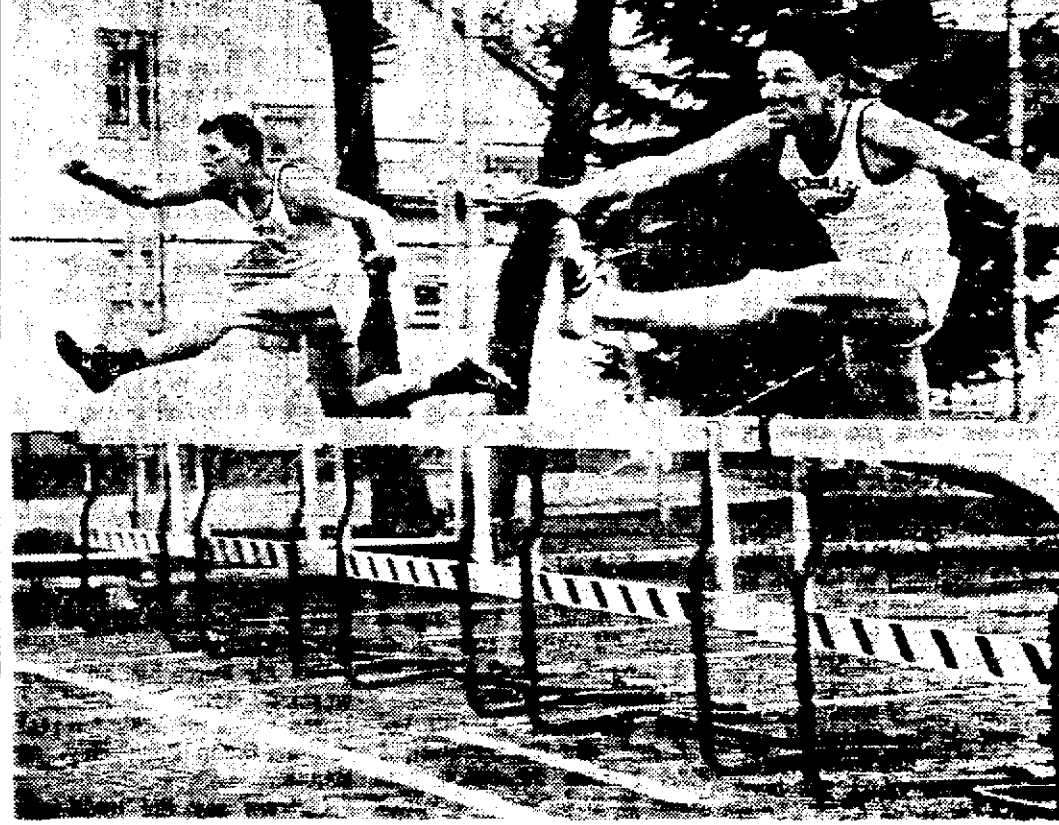

BALTIMORE (AP) — Basketball fans of the Baltimore Bullets are being offered their chance to coach.

Season ticket holders have been invited to check which seven of the 11 players they would protect from being drafted by the new Chicago entry in the National Basketball Association.

Chicago will be allowed to pick two players from each of the nine existing teams.

Herb Heft, executive vice president of the Bullets, decided to make it a game called Freeze Out.

Who will name the same seven players will win two tickets to a game next season.

Dodgers Nip Chicago Behind 11-Strikeout Hurling of Koufax

Ken Boyer would like to stop fielding like a New York Met, and the Cincinnati Reds would like to start hitting like Frank Robinson.

Boyer, the National League's best fielding third baseman while with St. Louis last year, committed three errors that contributed to Atlanta's 8-4 victory over the Mets Friday night.

The Reds, meanwhile, again failed to play their role as pre-season pennant favorites by dropping their sixth straight game, 9-7 to Philadelphia.

Boyer made only 12 errors all last season but already has five this year, all in the last three games. Two of the miscues came in the third inning when the Braves erupted for three runs and a 5-0 lead.

Wasn't Enough

The Reds did some erupting of their own for the first time this season, but it wasn't enough to solve their problems.

The Rockets won fewer events (four) than either runnerup Appleton (five) or third-place Green Bay East (five). And the last-place Red Devils produced the day's most lustrous performer, triple-winner Jim Barnhart.

Braves Hike Win Streak, Beat Mets

Boyer Commits Three Errors As Atlanta Triumphs, 8 to 4

ATLANTA (AP)—The Braves, who returned to Atlanta with a winning streak, have extended it to four games as they opened a home stand Friday night with a soggy 8-4 victory over the error-prone New York Mets.

Three boots by the usually impeccable Ken Boyer opened the gates to the victory that pushed the Braves to within two and one-half games of the National League lead.

Bobby Bragan's men remained tied with Philadelphia for fourth place.

The Braves broke it open in the first three innings as they took a 5-0 lead before 15,655 hardy fans. Many of them sported Mets' banners.

Only four of the Braves' runs were listed as earned.

The first four Braves' batters reached base in the first inning when the Braves scored twice. Eddie Mathews' double was the key blow.

The Braves, who collected a season high of 13 hits, got only one in the third inning when they scored three more runs.

Mathews walked. Hank Aaron hit a double play bouncer to Boyer and Kenny bootied it. Jack Hamilton, who stifled the Braves last week in New York, struck out Lee Thomas and Joe Torre, but Rico Carty singled to score Mathews.

Two walks forced in the second run of the frame and the third came home when Roy McMillan kicked winning pitcher Tony Cloninger's bouncer.

Boyer sandwiched his third error between a Menke single and a Felipe Alou double for a Braves' run in the fifth. Singles by Torre, Carty, Denis Menke and Sandy Alomar brought in two legitimate runs in the eighth.

high-jumped 5 feet, 11 inches to tie the height of AHS' Larry Einspahr and won the event on fewest misses.

Barnhart took discus honors with a strong effort of 149 feet, 9 1/4 inches. Barnhart, who also competed in one of the relay races, went from event to event without seeming to draw a deep breath and without asking for the customary rest between appearances.

Challenging Barnhart's 15-point total for the day was Neenah star Chuck Wismer, with 13. Wismer sprinted to victory in the "century" (in 10.6 seconds) and zoomed 21 feet, 9 inches to win the long jump event. Wismer was also second to AHS' Ron Brinkman in the 220-yard dash.

The Terrors' hurdling star, Ed Olson, who was another good bet to be a multiple winner, came up with an injury that cut into AHS' potential point total. Olson won the 120-yard high hurdles (in 15.5) but before he could run in the low hurdles — where he would have been favored — he suffered a knee injury in the long jump. The extent of the injury was not immediately known.

AHS had no entries in the 180-yard low hurdles because of Olson's injury and because John Vogt was hurt in the high hurdles race. Vogt had been running second to Olson in the 120-yard high, but he fell and failed to place.

Kohlman had no alternates to run in the low hurdles since the other AHS prospects were running in a JV meet at Green Bay Southwest.

New London '9' Logs 3-0 Win Over Phantoms

Macklin, Gorges Combine to Pitch 3-Hit Triumph

NEW LONDON — Coach Bill Beyer's New London baseball team posted a 3-0 win over West De Pere in a non-conference game here Friday.

John Macklin and Rich Gorges, both right-handed juniors, combined for the shutout. Macklin went the first five innings, allowing three hits, one walk and striking out six. Gorges finished, allowing no hits and no walks while striking out three.

West De Pere put on its only serious threat in the fifth inning when it filled the bases on an error, single and a walk. Poor base running erased two Phantom runs.

Dennis Dantoin started for De Pere and went four and one-third innings, giving up all three runs on five hits and one walk. Dantoin struck out four. Bob Krueger finished by whitewashing the Bulldogs on one walk and one strikeout.

New London scored the winning run of the game in the first inning as Jim Basewitz singled and scored on Ted Huber's line double to left field. In the fifth inning the Bulldogs talked twice as Basewitz boomed a triple to deep right center and scooted home on a passed ball as Huber attempted to sacrifice. Huber connected for his second double of the game and scored on a single by Dan Teschke.

The win gave New London a 1-2 mark.

Kathy Finishes Last in Race But Feels She's a Winner

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — Pretty Kathy Switzer's first venture into the man's world of college track brought her a last-place finish, but she feels she was a winner, after all.

"Finishing last didn't bother me," said the Lynchburg College coed after running the mile Thursday against Frederick College. "I was just praying I'd finish, period. I did, so that's one battle I won."

As it turned out, Kathy — a 19-year-old brunette who Saturday night will compete for the "Miss Lynchburg" beauty crown — was just half of the feminine contingent on the Lynchburg team Thursday.

scattering six hits and striking out 11. Jeff Torborg singled across the deciding run in the sixth.

Curt Flood's fifth-inning three-run homer snapped Pittsburgh's winning streak at six games. The blow broke the 4-4 deadlock created by Willie Stargell's three-run homer in the top of the inning.

Home runs by Joe Morgan and Jim Gentile stopped San Francisco's winning string at five. The homers backed the eight-hit pitching of Dave Giusti, whose three hits were the first for an Astro pitcher this season.

The Angels handed Minnesota its fourth straight loss as Jim McGlothlin and Bob Lee scattered nine hits. California scored in the second inning on Don Mincher's error and in the sixth on a bases-loaded infield single by pinch-hitter Willie Smith.

Detroit Tunes Up for Stanley Cup Opener With Canadiens

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Red Wings skated for more than an hour Thursday morning in a final tune-up for the opening of their Stanley Cup final series in Montreal Sunday afternoon.

Manager-Coach Sid Abel said his players may skate for a short time Saturday before leaving for Montreal.

Abel has decided not to stay in a downtown Montreal hotel, but has made arrangements in a motor lodge outside the city limits.

Abel also switched hotels in the semifinal series in Chicago "for luck" but that's not his reason for the change in Montreal.

He said he does not want to subject his players to the stares of fans and conventioners.

"This is not a freak show," Abel said.

The Red Wings will stay in a Toledo, Ohio, hotel after the two games in Montreal and between

Screams, Sobs, Moans Greet 'Action' Show

Jingo Notes Things Have Changed Since 1959; Describes Reaction to Pop Concert

BY JINGO

In the words of folk-rocker Bob Dylan, "The Times They Are A-Changin'." The changes were noted in two popular music concerts Jingo attended seven years apart.

Way back in 1959, the "dark ages" for today's pop fans, Jingo witnessed a stage show at Milwaukee which featured some of the big names of the time — Frankie Avalon, Duane Eddy and others. The reaction of the packed house at the Riverside Theatre was enthusiastic, but somewhat reserved.

Thursday night Jingo had a front row center seat for the "Where the Action Is" show at the WBAY Auditorium, Green Bay. The concert featured Gary Lewis and the Playboys, Paul Revere and the Raiders, the Knickerbockers and several othsion, she almost hypnotically walked toward an exit around which many girls were standing. It turned out that Mark Lindsay, lead singer of the Raiders, was on the other side of the door, which was guarded by police, signing autographs.

The young lady was fortunate enough to get Lindsay's signature. She nearly floated back to her seat, not believing her good fortune. Immediately, she became a celebrity of sorts with her friends by moaning, "I got Mark's autograph."

A girl seated in the row in front of her did not share the joy of Mark's signature, however, because she was transfixed in a daze which nothing penetrated.

"Gary... Gary" The enthusiasm for Paul Revere and the Raiders was tremendous, but if Jingo thought the girls had outdone themselves, he was in for a shock when the last act appeared. Gary Lewis, rapidly becoming as famous as his father, drove the young audience into an animalistic state — before he even sang a note.

When he started accounts of his many hits, the girls screamed until their eyes bugged out; they jumped up and down in violent, uncoordinated jerks; they cried (real tears); they threw items toward the stage, ranging from lipstick to candy.

One junior miss, who had crawled down the aisle to a spot nearly at Jingo's feet, was bawling her head off and uttering gasps of "Gary... Gary."

When she noticed the fans were throwing things at the stage, she dug into the pocket of her tight-fitting jeans and desperately tugged at an item therein. It proved to be a religious medal, which she threw at Lewis. Gary saw it coming and praised the powers that be caught it.

Sob Reaction The girl nearly fainted as she fell forward on the ground and sobbed, her life just having been made complete. The same girl later asked a doorman what she had to do to buy a ticket for the second performance of the evening.

At another point, Lewis threw a drumstick into the audience. Jingo would have hated to be in the scramble for the prize. The hysteria considered, the concert was a professionally staged, as is anything with Dick Clark's name attached. The musical highlight occurred early, when the drummer of the Knickerbockers — a group to be reckoned with in the future — put down his sticks and sang a everything and at the same fantastic version of the dramatic nothing. During intermission, she almost hypnotically walked toward an exit around which many girls were standing. It turned out that Mark Lindsay, lead singer of the Raiders, was on the other side of the door, which was guarded by police, signing autographs.

acting is excellent with Joan Greenwood turning in a magnificent portrait of a terribly genteel lady who happens to run an elegant boarding house for crooks. She and McGonohan have some very "civilized" scenes together that are acting gems. The plot concerns McGonohan's weekend task of recovering papers stolen from a friend attached to the British Embassy in Rome.

'Secret Agent' Suspenseful And Amusing BY TV SCOUT 7:30-8:30 (Channels 2-12) — Patrick McGonohan directed "The Paper Chase," a spy, suspenseful and amusing Secret Agent with a climactic scene that is one of the funniest you'll see in some time. As usual, Feeling." It must be rated as the best contemporary musical performance Jingo has ever witnessed — and he has seen a few.

Turtles Set For Appleton Engagement

Rocksters to Give 3 Shows April 27 At Country Aire

One of the nation's top-selling rock groups, The Turtles, will appear at the Country Aire Club next Wednesday.

The popular sextet had one of the big hits of 1965, Bob Dylan's "It Ain't Me Babe." They followed that success with two P. F. Sloan creations, "Let Me Be" and "You Baby," both of which made the top 30.

The White Whale recording artists appear here prior to a Thursday concert at Chicago as part of Dick Clark's Young Worlds Fair. Their Appleton appearance will begin at 9:30 p.m., with doors opening at 8:30. The group will present three shows, but one admission charge will permit fans to stay for all performances if they wish.

Started in Teen Club

The Turtles got their start at Red Foster's Reveaire Club at Redondo Beach, southern California's well-known night spot for teens.

The group consists of Howard Kaylan, Al Nichol, Charles Portz, Mark Volman, Don Murray and Jim Tucker.

Kaylan was born in New York City, but moved to Los Angeles at 9. He plays the saxophone, clarinet, tambourine and harmonica in addition to singing. When he is not working, he writes songs or listens to Bob Dylan, the Ventures, the Rolling Stones and Tchaikovsky.

Tucker is a native of Santa Ana, Calif., and is an accomplished guitarist and harmonica player. His favorite music personalities are Phil Spector and the Beatles.

Nichol, a native of Winston-Salem, N.C., can make music on the guitar, piano, organ, bass, trumpet and harpsichord, as well as vocally. He relaxes with Dylan songs, Baroque music and rhythm and blues. His "wildest experience" was acting in a gypsy wedding scene.

Los Angeles Natives Volman, born at Los Angeles, can play the clarinet, sax, drums and harmonica. He originally wanted to be a fireman, but a taste of music in high school changed that. He prefers a swing band "like Les Brown" for listening.

Portz, another Los Angeles native, can back up his singing with melodies on his guitar or harmonica and can accompany with bass. In high school, sports were his forte (he was California state diving finalist in 1961). After one year of college, he traded the swimming pool for a musical career. He enjoys music by Tchaikovsky, the Rolling Stones, Shostakovich and Lambert and Hendricks and Ross.

Murray, the drummer, is the third native of Los Angeles. He can also hold his own on guitar or harmonica. He keeps in trim with surfing and relaxes with Dave Brubeck music, blues, folk and rock and roll. His hobbies include reading (favorite authors: Ray Bradbury, Ayn Rand, and John Steinbeck) and watching the educational television station. He also collects comic books — "predominantly early Walt Disney."

Tobacco Great Hazard LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) "The use of tobacco is the greatest health hazard we have today," says a New Orleans physician, Dr. Allen Ochsner. He told a surgical conference that smoking "is a form of suicide."

Tony on I Dream of Jeannie. The medic has a list of 103 incidents that he is sure will ground the nervous astronaut. His most serious charge is that Tony has thrown "an orgy with a harem girl at NASA."

8:30-9 (Channels 2-7-12) — The Loner meets one of those free creatures who likes wild rides across the countryside. It turns out she is the fiancée of an old friend of our hero's, but there's an ex-No. 1. (R)

8:30-9:30 (Channels 11-6-9) — Victor Borge is back again to host the Hollywood Palace. The Danish comic-pianist is active in most of the acts, and repeats his famous "punctuation" routine, which he introduced years ago. (Color)

9-10 (Channels 2-7-12) — There's considerable tension on Gunsmoke, which is a bit more emotional than usual. Jack Elam guest stars as a gunslinger, who is being hunted down by his own son (Teno Pollick).

Sen. Nelson Forecasts Active Foreign Role for Congressmen

Fulbright Committee Expects to Examine United States Policy in Europe, NATO

OSHKOSH — Congressional hearings by the Fulbright committee into the U. S. role in Vietnam heralded a more active role for Congress in settling foreign policy, Sen. Gaylord Nelson said during a Friday session of the Association of Wisconsin State University Faculties here.

He said Sen. J. William Fulbright's committee is expected to examine policy in Europe and NATO next.

Sen. Nelson said the committee hearings have been the first major contribution to public understanding of the role the U. S. currently is playing in Vietnam.

"I think there is a proper role for Congress in determining foreign policy, an area in which the Congress has been derelict," he declared.

Rothwell Talk

Questions and answers followed a morning session which included talks by Sen. Nelson and Angus Rothwell, state superintendent of public instruction, who begins his job as head of the state education coordinating committee next July.

Rothwell in his morning talk concentrated on the faculty responsibilities in the state universities. He said that he is pleased to note a growing cooperation between those schools and the University of Wisconsin's School of Education.

"They are not competing institutions," he said. "They complement each other." Answering another question, Rothwell said he anticipates the state universities curriculum to expand outside the teacher preparation field. He said he expects the nine institutions will develop department strengths in the school milk program approach the way they have developed special educational fields.

Conservation Query

Sen. Nelson fielded a question on state and federal responsibility in meeting "the challenge of conservation problems," and won a round of applause which concluded the question-answer period.

Wisconsin is doing about a tenth of what it could and should to preserve and improve the quality of its environment, the senator advised. He said the federal government is doing about one ten-thousandth of what it could do.

"The test is whether the state and country are going to preserve an environment worth living in," he declared. "It is annual conference of the 38 Rotary Clubs in the district at Oshkosh this weekend. Donald Scott, superintendent of the Neenah Joint School District, is president of the local group."

Race Hails School Milk Program Choice

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman John A. Race hailed the House Appropriation's Committee's decision Friday to restore 82 million dollars to the school milk program as "the first victory which Wisconsin's dairy farmers have had in their battle against some very unwise decisions by the department of agriculture in recent months."

Race has been critical of the administration's efforts to slash the school milk program from 103 million to 21 million in 1967. The Fond du Lac lawmaker claimed that the cut "would virtually scuttle the school milk program" and as a result he introduced legislation of his own which would have restored the program's funds. "I have been very concerned in recent weeks," Race said, "over the apparent nomination of Wisconsin dairy farmers by the administration to be the whipping boys in the battle against inflation."

Horace Mann Boys Switch From Workshop to Kitchen

BY FERN SMITH Post-Crescent Staff Writer
NEENAH — For the past few weeks, 140 boys at Horace Mann Junior High School have been having fun — in a spot they didn't dream about before — the home economics cooking room.

It came about when their industrial arts instructor Eugene Vogt had to be hospitalized and Mrs. Paul Franke came to be the substitute teacher.

"Let's face it, I'm a home economics teacher, not a wood-working and electrical shop instructor," said the congenial Mrs. Franke who has substituted in almost every secondary school area in recent months.

"With Alvin Long's permission and encouragement I asked the boys how they would like to learn to cook. They said it would be fun to try." This is how the "plot" began, and it has turned into a real learning situation and fun.

Pies and puddings. The boys have learned to make a pie, how to measure, make a pudding, place the silver in a table setting and how to load the washer and dryer.

Would you believe it? They are now asking for another home economics stint — they want to learn how to mend their jeans, and sew on a button.

What do the boys say about it? "We've learned a lot. It's fun."

What does Mrs. Franke say about it? "They are great — extremely interested — and I've never seen home economics students so tidy. Look how it glistens in here."

Students Begin Parley At Lawrence to Define Role in War on Poverty

Shriver Calls for Massive Commitment to Wage Campaign

Students from 18 Midwestern colleges and universities Friday night began a three-day study of their part in the war on poverty in meetings at Lawrence University.

The workshop, sponsored by Lawrence and the Johnson Foundation, Racine, drew the attention of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Sargent Shriver, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO).

Humphrey, in a message to Leslie Paffrath, president of The Johnson Foundation, commended the sponsoring groups and asked that the workshop give attention to problems of school dropouts, summer education opportunities, and organized recreational programs as means of combating economic, scholastic, social and family problems.

Challenges Students
Shriver's wire challenged the students to an immediate "massive student commitment" in the war on poverty. He said, "that student help is desperately needed now if those in need of assistance are not to wait five or 10 years before we have an adequate supply of qualified teachers, Ph. D's and guidance counselors."

Youth, today, he said, "faces a great choice between a kind of nihilistic abhorrence of all governmental and institutional activities, and commitment of a that transforms our society and extends opportunity to all." He noted favorably "the emergence of a new breed of professionals inflamed with the sense of mission that students have brought to other causes."

Leslie Paffrath, president of The Johnson Foundation, set the direction for the workshop in an opening statement. He said the meeting's objective was to "come down to the hard pavement of reality" which deprives and limits millions in America "to the dark corridors of ill health and lack of opportunity."

Must Lead Way
Paffrath said that the workshop could provide information "which may and must lead to critical thought, awareness and involvement on the part of students throughout the nation."

He described poverty as "one of the areas of defeat" in this country's history. He noted, however, that "it is happy mark of our day that more is being thought of the use of resources and of the waste of those resources." The conference, he said, will seek to examine this waste in light of what human skills, drive, and leadership might do to remedy it in a substantial way.

Paffrath was introduced by Lawrence Dean Francis L. Broderick, until recently director of the United States Peace Corps in Ghana. Broderick noted the diverse views represented at the conference by the secular and religious oriented institutions. He said this diversity was typical of the American reform tradition in its moves against such ills as poverty.

Discuss Slum Conditions
In a one-hour panel discussion, a group of five professional project workers in New York slums described conditions among the city's poor and sought to define the elements of poverty and methods of attacking it.

Their talks centered on human needs of communication and identification and attitudes of hopelessness among the poor. Panel members and audience participants differed on whether poverty must be attacked by working with individuals or by reforming social conditions on a broader level.

The workshop will continue through today and Sunday.

Advisor to Speak

Cheryl Kohler of Albany, N.Y., uses a unique "monocle" to remind us to move our clocks forward one hour at 2 a.m. Sunday when daylight savings time goes into effect. (AP Wirephoto)

Don't be Caught Living In the Past; Move Forward

Unless you're very careful tonight you may find yourself living in the past Sunday. The whole Fox Valley will move forward, leaving you in a bygone era.

Worse yet, you may be late all day Sunday. You could oversleep, show up late at church, arrive after the dinner dishes have been cleared and miss your favorite Sunday night TV programs.

All this could happen if you fail to leap into a future world — the world of daylight saving time where everything starts one hour earlier.

Admission to the future is easy. When the clock reads 2 a.m. Sunday, all you have to do is set it ahead one hour to 3 a.m. Then make the same adjustment on all your timepieces — watches, sundials and hourglasses.

You can live in the future until Oct. 30 when daylight saving time ends and clocks are turned back one hour to central standard time. Don't pass up this opportunity to live in the future. Don't be the only one left in the past.

Rowan Talks at Oshkosh

Former Head of USIA Warns Of Oversimplified U.S. Image

OSHKOSH — Anyone saying dom during the last year and our image overseas is horrible, have liked it.

"And let no one tell you that the people of mainland China are not vulnerable to the same hopes and dreams that have motivated the peoples of Eastern Europe," he added.

Part of Message Ignored
Rowan said the President's State of the Union message had several sentences that were largely ignored because of the country's preoccupation with Viet Nam.

A decision to pull out of South Viet Nam might please some nations, but it would frighten and displease Thailand, Malaya and several other states, he said.

Suffered Some Setbacks
While it may be true the United States has suffered some setbacks in Africa in recent months and in Latin America, "in neither continent is the situation so serious that it might not be reversed by the Fourth of July."

Rowan called attention to the U. S. image being bright and getting brighter all the time, despite the difficulties over Viet Nam, in the Communist countries of Eastern Europe, which have breathed the air of free-

Science and technology have a crucial role to play in helping each person to reach his goal and science and technology thus have a vital role to play in easing world tensions, Rowan stated in his talk on "Psychological Warfare: Meeting the Challenge of Communism."

Military Power Essential
Rowan said he is not ignoring military power since "it is utterly essential in this ugly, bellicose world. Were it not for the United States having more of it than any other nation in history, the Americans would not be enjoying more freedom than any other people in history."

The recent Buddhist-led riots and demonstrations in Viet Nam have dismayed officials in Washington, from the President on down, Rowan remarked.

Force Not Enough
Citing that the United States has 240,000 troops in South Viet Nam, another 60,000 in the Seventh Fleet just off the shore and another 20,000 or so in nearby Thailand, Rowan stated "all this military force does not enable us to halt these troubles that flow out of ideas, out of psychological warfare."

Words, ideas, have the power to embarrass, to disarm, to embolden, to devastate, Rowan explained.

"That is why there must always be people who worry about what the world thinks of us, of our ideals, of our political institutions, of all else that we stand for."

No Ideological Coexistence
He pointed out Khrushchev adopted the policy of "peaceful co-existence" because he knew it was too dangerous for communism to try to conquer the world through military tactics.

Rowan added that Khrushchev had said again and again that there could be no ideological coexistence.

"The Chinese Communists were not so eager to forego 'wars of liberation' and other stabs at military conquest — hence the Sino-Soviet split, and the bitter war in Viet Nam. And the Chinese attitude may well have been a major factor in Chairman Khrushchev's demise," he noted.

The speaker urged his audience to look past the Defense Department communiques to see how the Americans are doing in the other struggle — the effort to win the hearts, to reach the minds of that great uncommitted world.

Violations Cost 4 Cyclists Their Right to Drive
KAUKAUNA — Four youths operating motor bikes lost driving privileges for 30 days after pleading guilty of traffic violations when they were arraigned before Oscar T. Jahns, municipal justice, Thursday afternoon.

Arrested for speeding were Alfred Lom, 16, 214 Kamps St., Combined Locks, and Robert J. Stienen, 16, 312 S. Patrick St., Kimberly. Losing their driving privileges for arterial violations were Richard Huss, 17, route 2, Kaukauna, and Donald Miller, 316 E. 18th St., Kaukauna.

With the increasing number of motor bikes on the road, special care in the operation should be practiced, particularly at arterial signs, police said. They warned that some enforcement of statutes will apply to bike operators the same as car drivers.

Variety of Posts
On the subject of public morale, Rich observed, "Hong Kong people enjoy being in the eye of the Far Eastern wind."

Rich passed his diplomatic corps examination in 1932, has held a variety of posts in China for eight years, survived four military occupations during the Sino-Japanese war and returned to the United States after V-J Day. He was in Manila during the Huk Uprising and prior to going to his present assignment two years ago Rich was Deputy Assistant Secretary for Far Eastern Affairs in the State department.

Hong Kong is often termed the West's "listening post" or "peephole" into Communist China. Rich said the United States benefits by monitored radio broadcasts, often elsewhere than Hong Kong, Chinese press releases and publications, both from the Communist press in Hong Kong as well as the mainland, are translated by his staff. There are interviews with travelers, the businessmen, foreign news correspondents and others.

Reporting Difficult
"It's difficult to do an accurate job of reporting from outside, but we do a fairly good job," he evaluated. He said he based his conclusion on comparison with findings of other observers of events and reaction in Communist China. Should the United States cease the Hong Kong effort and re-open an embassy in Peking, Rich said, he would "not at all sure we would do a better job."

Hong Kong, he pointed out, is the most convenient door for news correspondents, scientists and others going into China. About 50 Chinese daily immigrate legally across the border from Hwanton Province to Hong Kong. Others cross secretly.

Appleton Democrat

Dr. M. S. Kagen Seeks 8th Congressional Seat

Dr. Marvin S. Kagen, 48-year-old Appleton dermatologist and active Democrat, today announced his candidacy for the Democratic party nomination for 8th District Congressman.

Kagen, a native of Chicago, has resided in Appleton since 1948 and is a former city health commissioner. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois.

A vice-chairman of the Outagamie County Democratic party, Dr. Kagen said he feels, "The time has come to send a Democrat to Congress to give the 8th Congressional District the kind of representation it deserves and has been lacking."

Plans Hard Campaign
Kagen said he if he is successful in obtaining his party's nomination, he will wage an all-out campaign against the incumbent, Rep. John Byrnes.

Ironically, Kagen picked Green Bay — Byrnes' hometown — to announce his candidacy at a press conference.

"As a physician, one must care for the individual person," Kagen said. "However, one must also consider his family, community and society and have a desire to help people."

Kagen said he has given the congressional race serious thought over a period of time and felt he had the qualifications and dedication required "to help all people regardless of their position in life."

"It is the patriotic duty of all Americans to play a role in public affairs to the extent of their capacity," Kagen said. "We live in a period of great crisis, and I would like to offer my services as our representative in the U.S. Congress."

The well-known Appleton doctor, who was active in the Kennedy presidential campaign in Wisconsin, said this was a time to keep the country moving forward.

"Let us trade our battlefields for the conference tables, our ignorance for knowledge and our fears for understanding," Kagen said.

Dr. Kagen and his wife, Virginia, a native of Janesville, have three children: Sue, 18; Steve, 12, and Charles, 12.

Commissioned Officer
After graduation from the University of Illinois Medical School, Dr. Kagen interned at Cook County Hospital, Chicago. He also served two years in the service, and was a commissioned officer on active duty in the Reserve Corps of the U.S. Public Health Service.

In addition to Democratic party politics, Dr. Kagen also has been active in community, county and regional civic projects and holds membership in many organizations.

Among his professional affiliations are membership in the Outagamie County and Wisconsin Medical societies, American Medical Association, Wisconsin Dermatology Society, Chicago Dermatology Society, American Academy of Dermatology and the International Congress of Dermatology.

Wife in Politics
Mrs. Kagen, the former Virginia Ann Johnson, studied at Lawrence University, and is a graduate of St. Luke School of Nursing, Chicago. She has been a Democratic precinct committeewoman and was in Washington with a delegation of Wisconsin Democrats this week.

Dr. Kagen is the first resident of the 8th District to throw his hat in the ring for the congressional nomination. "In this endeavor, I will need the help of all my friends," Dr. Kagen said. They reside at 505 E. Grant St.

No Traffic Will be Allowed on Segment of Street, Suggest 41, Wisconsin Avenue as Detours

Reconstruction of W. College Avenue from Outagamie Street to Linwood Avenue will start Tuesday, Public Works Director Robert W. Bues announced today.

The avenue from Outagamie Street to the viaduct will be closed to traffic for the widening and resurfacing project which will cost $121,575.

It is a state project with the city's share totaling $22,100, Bues said.

Contract for the street work has been awarded by the Wisconsin State Highway Commission to Vinton Construction Co. of Manitowish.

Mid-July Reopening
Inspection of the project and barricading of streets will be supervised by the State Highway Commission. Bues said the contract calls for the work to be completed in 75 days, with the street reopened by mid-July.

The cost assessed to property owners is $2.62 per front foot for residential property and $6.45 for business, commercial or industrial, Bues said.

Because of the avenue closing, eastbound traffic normally entering Appleton via State 125 (W. College Avenue) will now have to reroute, using U.S. 41, Wisconsin Avenue, Spencer Street and Prospect Avenue (County BB) as major carriers.

The major north-south connection for the east-west streets will be Bluemound Road.

Suggestions Offered
Bues offered several suggestions to help expedite the work and ease inconvenience to property owners and the motoring public.

"The patience of everyone will be appreciated," he said. "Cars should be parked behind barriers or on adjoining streets to avoid blocking of traffic."

"Property owners should have their cars out of driveways before construction crews occupy the street."

—Children should be kept away from the work area to avoid injury.

—Residents should not throw leftover debris into the roadway. If there is any, it will be removed by the contractor.

—Complaints should be reported to the inspector on the job, and if not remedied by him, the city engineering division can be called.

—No one should drive cars over pavement until barricades are removed by the contractor so there can be proper curing of the new concrete.

City to Reroute
Bues said backfilling behind the curb will be done by the contractor. However, seeding of torn up terrace areas will be done by the city.

Bues also said driveway aprons will be replaced by the contractor.

He reminded that residents desiring concrete driveway aprons, where none existed prior to reconstruction, must contract privately with a licensed cement finisher who will take out the necessary permits.

And, residents desiring any other type of driveway apron must take out a permit in the office of the public works director at city hall.

Bues added that rubbish and garbage will be collected in the blocks affected by the construction on regularly scheduled days.

But he emphasized that residents will have to carry rubbish to the nearest adjoining street where it will be picked up by city crews. However, garbage will be picked up in the usual manner, at residences.
